American Gaming Systems

American Gaming Systems (AGS) is a leader in the manufacturing and operation of gaming machines, primarily providing video machines to tribal markets. They currently operate more than 8,000 units, and have plans for aggressive expansion that will give casino operators new machine options and creative new content. That's why the Agent / Consultant for AGS we turned to Interface Security Services and Verizon Wireless to provide network services to their nationwide system of gaming machines.

Four G Networks worked with Interface Security Systems to provide AGS with a network design featuring the advanced security services of the Cisco 891 router and a redundant 4G wireless connection via a CradlePoint 750 router for failover and business continuity. Additionally, Four G Networks and Interface are preparing to assist AGS as they roll out at 300 new locations throughout Illinois over the next 12-months (2012 – 2013.)

Four G Networks was able to overcome logistical challenges that plagued AGS by leveraging our diverse network of service providers and installers. With our complete end-to-end solution and proactive management, and by the use of standard hardware and configuration throughout their network, additionally Interface Security Systems was able to simplify their in-house technical support and eliminate their need to increase support staff.
